Malamata Floor Lamp by Luceplan

Designed by Studio Shulab, the Malamata floor light features a beautiful metal structure which delicately holds a spherical glass lampshade. The floor lamp's name is aptly derived from the Hebrew term for 'up and down' as the shade can be moved using the metal orb on the structure. The orb acts as a counterweight, providing an innovative way of moving the shade up and down.

Available in matt black or brushed brass, the Malamata floor light can be used in a wide variety of settings thanks to its diffused glow. Whether you need a bright illumination to fill the room, or a soft reading light, this floor lamp will not disappoint. You can also match it with others from the Luceplan Malamata collection for a consistent lighting scheme.
