Tom Raffield Shore Pendant

Inspired by nature, Tom Raffield's Shore Pendant represents the strong, seamless motions of the sea. The timber rolls and intertwines in fluid movements, reminiscent of a barrel of a waking wave. The shade is crafted from sustainably sourced ash, oak, or walnut, which is steam-bent to create its organic-looking form. The process of steam-bending allows for the timber to be twisted and curved into seemingly impossible shapes without the use of any glues or unattractive fastenings.

The Shore Pendant is designed to look different from every angle. The centre of the shade contains the light source, which is left partially exposed. This creates intriguing pockets of light that are cast against surrounding walls. The warm, ambient glow and sculptural form make the Shore Pendant perfect for creating a sanctuary within your home. Install above a bed to add a cosy atmosphere to the space or in a living room for an eye-catching talking point. Capture the essence of the coastline by displaying the Shore Pendant in an interior with a neutral colour palette to reflect the breezy atmosphere of sandy shores.

Please Note: This pendant light is supplied with a brass socket and ceiling canopy with a black cable as standard. Other options are available, please contact us for more information and pricing.
