Designer: Birger Dahl

Northern Dahl Chandelier

The Dahl Chandelier is part of the iconic Dahl Collection, designed in 1956 for the renovation of Norway's Parliament Building. Created by Scandinavian designer Birger Dahl, the chandelier showcases his distinctive modernist style. The geometric frame is softened by the gentle lines of the glass shades, creating a timeless aesthetic that suits classic and contemporary interiors. The chandelier is available with small or large shades and in two finishes: brass and black with brass details. These luxurious finishes add an elegant touch to any environment.

The Dahl Chandelier features nine mouth-blown glass shades, anchored to the frame by brass detailing. The etched opal white glass diffuses light, creating a soft, warm glow that surrounds the shade. This ambient glow is perfect for adding a comfortable light to living rooms or creating a focal point over a dining table. In commercial spaces, the Dahl Chandelier adds a sophisticated element to hotel lobbies and restaurants, leaving a lasting impression.
