Designed by collaborators Barba Corsini and Joaquim Ruiz Millet, the H2O pendant takes its design from Corsini's original PD2 floor lamp, which was made in 1955 for the attic apartments in Gaudi's La Pedrera. Inspired by the structure, the iconic holed shade is reminiscent of the building's skylights and chimneys, resulting in a timeless and modern form.

Unlike the PD2 lamp, the H2O pendant has smaller holes, showing an adaptation from the original light shade to bring a sleeker and even more contemporary design that can be enjoyed in a variety of settings. With an inner diffuser, this light produces a warm light to create a cosy atmosphere. With three finishes available this simplistic yet powerful light will also look best alongside other lights from the Pedrera collection, to create a consistent design scheme that is influenced by La Pedrera.
