Cobra Wall Lamp by Gubi

Designed by Greta M. Grossman in the 1950s, the Cobra Wall Lamp is part of her wider Cobra collection and takes its name from the lampshade, which is reminiscent of a cobra's hood. With a lampshade that can be tilted 90 degrees, from horizontal to vertical, and rotated 360 degrees, this wall light can be adjusted to fit your needs and to make the most of your space.

The base cover and shade are powder-coated steel with a solid brass arm joining them together. A bracket for mounting the light on the wall is integrated into the base, as is the switch. The modernity of the shade paired with its adjustable capabilities means this wall light looks perfect in entrance halls and corridors, bringing a chic and classic look to your passageways through its unique design.
