&Tradition Flowerpot VP1 Pendant

Evoke the spirit of the sixties with &Tradition's Flowerpot VP1 Pendant. The instantly recognisable design was created by Danish design legend Verner Panton in 1968, at the height of the flower power movement. Panton's mission was to encourage people to "use their imagination and make their surroundings more exciting". This was the inspiration behind the bold use of colours, designed to add a playful personality to any environment.

The Flowerpot VP1 Pendant is characterised by its simple yet striking design, comprised of two hemispherical shades. The lower shade is half the size of the upper shade, concealing the light source to produce a soft, glare-free glow. This ambient lighting is a signature of Panton's designs and is perfect for creating a cosy environment in the home. Display above a table or worksurface to add a splash of colour in a dining room, kitchen, or living room. In commercial spaces, the VP1 suits hospitality settings such as a café, using the wide spectrum of bold colours to create an energetic atmosphere.
