Artemide Lesbo Table Lamp

The Artemide Lesbo Table Lamp was designed by Angelo Mangiarioti in 1966 and represents one of the symbols of the made in Italy design of the 70s, characterised by its particular mushroom shape. Lesbo boasts a blown Murano glass body that sits on a polished metal base; the diffuser and base smoothly transition into each other, and it is only the change in material that breaks their unity.

Offering a sophisticated aesthetic and an ambient illumination, the white glass diffuser emits a soft, uniform light all around. An in-line dimmer on the cable allows you to easily personalise the strength of the lighting output. The Artemide Lesbo looks stunning on your desk, side table, in a reading nook or just about any surface around your home or professional setting.
