Caiigo Pendant Light by Foscarini

The Caiigo pendant light is named so from the Venetian term for fog as the design of the pendant resembles mist with the lampshade becoming clearer towards the top. The shade is made using a master hand-blown glass technique that spans centuries in the famous glass-making region in Italy. As the light is turned on the beauty of this technique illuminates and the bottom warms up and fades away upwards, whilst also providing a needed downward light.

The Caiigo pendant is perfect for many settings and is useful over tables and surfaces because of its downward light. This pendant can be used in lounges, dining areas, kitchens and more in both homes and commercial settings. The gorgeous lampshade makes this pendant light a piece of Italian artistry and will look chic and stylish in any space.
