Practicality without losing out on style, the Superloon LED floor lamp by designer Jasper Morrison is an effortlessly suave design. British designer Morrison brings his minimal aesthetic to yet another design, with the understated yet eye-catching Superloon. Inspired by a new technology developed by Piero Gandini, CEO of the Italian lighting design label Flos, which gives the ring the appearance of being lit from within, Morrison has created a functional yet striking light.

Available in three colour finishes, black or chrome, the Superloon has a telescopic base providing a stable and attractive base. The Superloon's LED plate can be rotated 360 degrees emitting different intensities of light depending on personal preference, which makes the Superloon great as a task/reading light or for ambient lighting. The Superloon floor light is also dimmable with a switch sensor located on the stem which allows you to dim from 2200K to 2800K (very warm white to warmest white colour temperature).
