Launched in 2017 at Euroluce by Michael Anastassiades, the Overlap pendant light consists of two interlocking rings that intersect at right angles, making the rings almost appear to be pushing through the membrane-like resin. Originally used by the US Army as a protective material for packaging, the cocoon liquid resin, from which the Overlap pendant is formed, has been used by Flos since the 1960s to create innovative and iconic pieces.

Protected with a transparent spray, the Overlap pendant lamp has a silky finish, similar to that of the cocoons created by butterflies, hence the namesake. Available in two sizes, the smaller S1 and larger S2, this pendant offers a warm, diffused glow.
