PRODUCT DESCRIPTION

Designer: Alvar Aalto

Artek A622 Ceiling Light

Designed by Alvar Aalto in 1953, the Artek A622 ceiling light is a superb example of timeless design, offering both aesthetic appeal and practical illumination. Originally created for the National Pensions Institute in Helsinki, the light features a shade made from hand-riveted metal sheets arranged in concentric circles. This construction allows the light to diffuse softly, providing a calm and glare-free atmosphere. The A622 is perfect for creating ambient lighting in both residential and commercial interiors, making it an ideal choice for spaces that require elegant, understated lighting solutions.

The A622 is available in two sizes (A622A and A622B), offering flexibility for different room dimensions and lighting needs. Mounted directly onto the ceiling, it fits seamlessly into spaces where a minimalist, clean look is desired. Whether installed in a living room, hallway, or office, the A622's timeless design ensures that it complements a variety of interiors, from modern to classic. Made in Finland, this light showcases Aalto's talent for combining form and function, offering a beautifully crafted solution for both public and private settings.
