Verpan Spiral Mini Pendant

The Verpan Spiral Mini Pendant was designed by Verner Panton in 1969. The iconic design is an excellent example of Panton's experimental approach to design, which often involved a playful use of colours and shapes. Crafted from silver spirals suspended from a three-ring frame, the Spiral Mini interacts with its surroundings through reflection, sound, and movement. As air flows through the pendant, the shade creates a gentle chiming, while the spirals reflect light for a dynamic play of light and shadows.

The Spiral Mini Pendant adds a sculptural elegance to interiors, even when not in use. When illuminated, the shade conceals the light source, filtering light through the spirals for glare-free lighting and an ambient glow. Display individually for a decorative focal point or create unique compositions by installing multiples in clusters. Install with other pendants from the Spiral Collection for a cohesive display that pays tribute to one of the most influential designers in Danish lighting design.
