Foscarini Havana Wall Light

The Havana Wall Light is part of the Foscarini Havana collection, a range designed by Jozeph Forakis in 1993. Still iconic and relevant today, the lights from this collection can be seen in a permanent exhibition at the New York MoMA. The wall light is inspired by the shape of a cigar and is made up of 4 sections that are held together by small metal rings, allowing for little bands of light to escape. The lampshade also diffuses the light, creating a warm, soft glow that is far-reaching and illuminating.

Perfect for many spaces, the Foscarini Havana Wall Light can be used in multiple to line the room or hallways or can be used alone in smaller spaces to light up the room. The unique and flawless design makes this wall lamp a wonderful choice and a timeless piece to include in your interior.
